U.S. Act In U.N. Pleases

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. AP -- U.N. diplomats were elated today over the new U. S. policy ending the threat of a U.S.-Soviet showdown over unpaid peacekeeping assessments.

The diplomats agreed that the U.S. retreat, announced by Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, opens the way for resumption of normal operations of the General Assembly after a year of paralysis.

The American abandonment of the fight to force the Russians to pay up drew approval and condemnation from members of the U.S. congress. Officials of the Johnson administration anticipated a new campaign for a close look at future requests for U.S. money for the United Nations.

Reaction from Soviet delegates to the United Nations was cautious, but chief delegate Platon D. Morozov commented that "unless we are mistaken and deluded" there is now substantial agreement on normalization of the assembly's work.

He added, however, that the Soviet Union wanted firm guarantees and not just a statement that the United States had decided not to invoke Article 19 of the U.N. Charter. This article provides that a member country will lose its vote in the assembly if it fails two years behind in paying assessments. The Soviet Union, France and 11 other countries are in this category because of refusal to pay for peacekeeping operations.

Goldberg said that, because of majority opinion in the world organization, the United States had abandoned its attempts to enforce the voting penalty in Article 19. He said private polls among diplomats and U.N. officials had shown that a majority was not prepared to enforce the charter provision.

One Billion Bushel Soybean Crop in Few Years Predicted

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- A high official of the American Soybean Association predicted today that in only a few years U. S. soybean farmers will be producing one billion bushels per year.

George M. Strayer, executive vice president of the association, made the prediction in his report to the group's 45th annual convention in session here. "I expect to see the day when we will be producing a billion bushels," Strayer said. "And I might even see the day when we would be producing one and one-half billion bushels of soybeans per year and find markets for all of them."

Strayer said American farmers could very well produce the 864 million bushels of soybeans which the U. S. Department of to meet him within sight of land aboard the trawler Girl Christian.

With her went her daughter Robin, 14, and son, Douglas, 11. The children were anxious for their first sight of their father since he set sail from Falmouth, Mass., 78 days and 3,200 miles ago.

Mrs. Manry said she would ask her husband to delay landing his 13 1/2-foot-long craft until Wednesday rather than come in tonight.

Every cliff along the Cornish coast line was lined with people hoping to spot the Tinkerbell. The Tinkerbell is the smallest boat to cross the Atlantic nonstop. Manry left Falmouth, Mass., June 1 on the 3,200-mile voyage.

The people of Falmouth readied a big welcome.

A trawler took Mrs. Manry out to the Tinkerbell, 55 miles off Cornwall, Monday for a 10-minute reunion with her husband.

Manry told her the tiny boat had lost one rudder and one oar during its long voyage.

Manry, a copy editor for the Cleveland Plain Dealer, spent six years rebuilding his 30-year-old boat. He developed sailing skill on Lake Erie and also became an accomplished carpenter.

Industrial Output Up

WASHINGTON AP -- The nation's industrial production rose sharply in July, and the Federal Reserve Board attributed it to a high volume of output of steel, business equipment and automobiles.

Agriculture forecast for 1965-1966 million bushels more than at any other time in history. "We have been fortunate, for we have had a crop which the world needed and could use in quantity," Strayer said. "The world still needs protein and oil, and if we play our cards right we can continue to expand our crop far above today's levels."

Soybeans have been generally selling above support levels in recent years, Strayer said, but the industry faces "the possibility of large governmental stocks of soybeans at the end of the crop year, Aug. 31, 1966, and the probability of pressures being exerted on the secretary of agriculture to place soybeans on the surplus commodity list for the first time."

Less than 5 Per Cent Go to Polls

Less than five per cent of the registered voters in Sikeston cast ballots this morning on three amendments to Missouri's constitution.

A vote tally at 11 a.m. today showed that 222 votes had been cast in the four polling places. According to Scott County Clerk Phil Waldman, Jr., 7,351 registered voters live in Sikeston.

The polls opened at 6 a.m., and will close at 7 p.m. or sunset, whichever comes latest.

The amendments: One--Allow the governor of Missouri to succeed himself once. This amendment has been endorsed by the Daily Standard, the Chamber of Commerce, and Junior Chamber of Commerce and actively pushed by a bipartisan citizens committee chaired by Ernest Harper and Phil Barkett.

Two--Allow cities to sell industrial buildings constructed with revenue bonds. Little opposition, except in the Kansas City area, has been given the proposal, supported by the Daily Standard.

Three--Reapportion the House of the state legislature to conform with the United States Supreme Court's "one-man, one-vote" decision. The redistricting lines were drawn by the state house of representatives, and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes is hopeful of its passage.

In Jefferson City yesterday, if the amendment is defeated, Hearnes said, he would refer the matter to courts or appoint a bi-partisan commission to draw new lines. The amendment is opposed by the Daily Standard.

Polling places in the city are: ward one, both precincts police station; ward two, both precincts, Mitchell Sharp garage; ward three, both precincts, Sikeston Motor Co.; ward four, both precincts, army.

A light vote of 2,200 has been predicted for the county, which has 14,926 registered voters.

Hot Day For Voting

ST. LOUIS AP -- Hot, humid weather greeted voters who turned out for Missouri's special election today on three constitutional amendments.

In the St. Louis area early voting was reported extremely light.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick has predicted only about 350,000 to 400,000 of the state's estimated 2,800,000 eligible voters would show up.

Three significant constitutional changes are on the ballot but the general citizenry showed little interest in them during the campaign.

No. 1, backed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, would allow a governor to succeed himself for a second term. It was given a chance to pass and if approved would clear the way for Hearnes to run again in 1968.

In this sense it appeared to be something of a popularity contest for the 42-year-old Democratic governor.

Proposal No. 2 roused little controversy. It would let cities sell industrial plants built with revenue bonds, something they can't do now.

Most of the conflict in the campaign centered around proposal No. 3.

It would increase the membership of the State House of Representatives from 163 to 168, allow the House to redistrict itself after each census and increase the number of legislative employees from 220 to 325.

The Senate would continue to be redistricted by a bipartisan commission such as the one now at work.

Republicans and some Democrats attacked the proposal as opening the way for outrageous gerrymandering. They said it would make the House a Democratic stronghold forever and leave only about 25 real "swing" districts which could go either way.

If adopted today -- and observer's gave it only a 50-50 chance -- it would put into effect a reapportionment bill passed by the 1965 legislature. It goes into effect Oct. 13 if the amendment is adopted.

First Bodies Seen In Lake Michigan

CHICAGO AP -- A United Air Lines jet airliner with 30 aboard plunged into Lake Michigan Monday night and the first of the victims' bodies were reported sighted today.

The plane bound from New York to Chicago disappeared in a blinding flash and a roar of explosion northeast of Chicago. The lake water depth there ranges from 150 to 200 feet.

James Seymour, a radio operator at Crystal Lake, Ill., reported intercepting a message from the Coast Guard Cutter Woodbine that four bodies had been recovered.

Earlier the cutter reported sighting debris and some luggage. The Woodbine is one of several vessels searching for possible survivors among the 24 passengers and crew of 6.

The Boeing 727 three-engine jet crash presumably killed the 30 aboard.

The spokesman said the Coast Guard reported that they spotted debris and luggage about 15 miles in the lake off Waukegan, Ill., about 45 miles north of Chicago. The Woodbine, stationed at Grand Haven, Mich., was one of several boats making a search.

Thunderstorms broke out during the early morning along the north shore of Lake Michigan, hampering the search.

It had passed a weak weather front successfully and was in almost calm atmosphere with good visibility when the blast wiped it off the airport radar screen.

One of those aboard was Clarence L. (Clancy) Sayen, a Seattle, Wash., businessman, who as president of the Air Line Pilots Association for nearly 11 years had worked unflinchingly for air safety legislation.

Sayen, a former pilot, left ALPA in May 1962.

A spokesman for United told reporters, "I can only tell you the plane is overdue. There were 24 passengers, including, we believe, at least two children."

Planes and helicopters from Glenview Naval Air Station flew immediately to the area where the plane disappeared, but found nothing illuminated by their dropped flares. Small boats of the Coast Guard put out for the general area east of Highland Park and Ft. Sheridan Army post. These craft based at Wilmette and Waukegan were joined by dozens of small motor yachts.

27 Viet Cong Killed In Clash Near Border

SAIGON AP -- A Viet Nam government force killed 27 Viet Cong today in a clash 30 miles below the North Viet Nam border, a U.S. military spokesman reported.

The clash with an estimated company of guerrillas brought to 32 the total of Viet Cong killed since a search operation was launched four days ago in Ba Long Valley, the spokesman said.

Vietnamese casualties were not reported.

The ground drive began after B52 bombers from Guam hit the area. The offensive was described as one of the largest government actions in months in the northernmost sector of South Viet Nam.

Six Viet Cong were captured and 28 weapons seized, the spokesman said.

Monday night about 40 Viet Cong guerrillas, screaming

Guard's shore stations, was directed to a point 11 miles due east of Ft. Sheridan estimated by the Federal Aviation Agency as the last radar fix point.

Capt. Gerald T. Applegate of the Coast Guard said the Slow Poke reported a strong odor of diesel oil, but nothing else.

The plane, United's Flight 359, was commanded by Capt. Melville W. Towle, 42, of Wyckoff, N. J., father of four children. Minutes before the tragedy, he radioed for landing instructions and acknowledged an order from the O'Hare tower to enter a pattern. He gave no intimation of trouble.

Flying the plane with him was First Officer Roger M. Whitezell, 34, of North Plainfield, N.J., and Maurice L. Femmer, 26, of Elmont, N. Y., the second officer.

Three stewardesses in the plane were Phyllis M. Rickert, 22, of Chicago; Sandra H. Fuhrer, 20, of Mount Prospect, Ill., and Jeneal G. Beaver, 20, of Long Beach, Calif.

They had left La Guardia Airport on Long Island at 8:52 p.m., and would have made their scheduled landing at 9:27 p.m.

There had never been a 727 crash.

20 Years for De Angelis

NEWARK, N. J. AP -- Anthony Tino DeAngelis was sentenced to 20 years in federal prison today on charges of conspiracy and fraud stemming from the collapse of his multimillion vegetable oil empire.

He drew two consecutive 10-year sentences, along with concurrent terms of five and 10 years on four separate counts to which he had pleaded guilty.

DeAngelis had been given a nominal maximum sentence of 10 years in May on the same charges. However, the judge invoked a seldom used federal law which provided that he be brought back to court in three months for reconsideration.

DeAngelis pleaded guilty Jan. 8 to circulating fraudulent warehouse receipts and admitted conspiring to circulate $100 million in forged receipts.

He built the nation's largest vegetable oil refining operation in Bayonne in 1955.

When the firm plunged into bankruptcy in November 1963, creditors found nearly empty storage tanks.

Creditors holding worthless receipts filed claims totaling $190 million against two storage companies whose job it was to verify that the commodities listed were in the tanks. In all, about 15 companies filed for bankruptcy as the scandal unfolded.

Path of Farm Bill Smoothed by Changes

WASHINGTON AP -- The House today takes up the administration's farm bill, its path smoothed by a decision to drop the provision critics called a "bread tax."

The decision to have the Treasury carry the burden of higher payments to wheat growers was reached Monday night at a session in Speaker John W. McCormack's office.

Designed to win back big city Democrats who had threatened to jump the traces on the bread issue, it brightens President Johnson's chances of one more legislative victory. He has yet to be beaten on a major bill this session.

"This pulls the rug out from those who have been talking about a bread tax," said Rep. Harold D. Cooley, D-N. C., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

The conferees - among them Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Lawrence F. O'Brien, the President's top liaison man with Congress - decided also to make four changes in the cotton section, only a little less controversial than the embattled wheat position.

"This would take out most of the objectionable features of the bill," Cooley said.

Four changes in the cotton section of the bill were decided on at Monday night's session. They will be offered as amendments by a member of the Agriculture Committee, probably Rep. Phillip M. Landrum, D-Ga.

One would permit the transfer of released acreage across county lines within the state, as permitted under present law.

A second would permit unlimited planting only on a farm which had an acreage allotment this year.

A third would permit payments to a planter for retiring 15 per cent of his acreage even if he acquired new cotton acreage. But he would not be paid for retiring 15 per cent of the new acreage.

The fourth would limit to 100 acres the new farm acreage allotment a planter could acquire.

Try to End Maritime Strike

WASHINGTON AP -- Negotiators worked through the night and into the morning today trying to reach an agreement which would end a 63-day maritime strike.

There was no indication of when the session would break up or was there official word on how the talks were progressing.

The strike has tied up about 100 merchant ships, and President Johnson Monday called for their "speedy resumption of operation."

He directed Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz to report to him by 5 p.m. Wednesday on the possibility of getting the ships sailing again.

Package Lures Americans To Purchase Fancy Foods

NEW YORK AP -- A spokesman for the fancy food business says people who buy caviar, kangaroo tail soup and artichoke buttons may be fascinated more by how they look than how they taste.

Julian Cowan, president of the National Association for the Specialty Food Trade, said in an interview at the association's annual show that it's probably the package more than the exotic food inside that sparks people to buy.

It's impossible to sell this without a fancy package," said Cowan, looking at shelves loaded with ginger - butter sauce, sour lemon balls, orange-flavored watermelon rind and dried Mexican bananas.

Cowan and some 125 other importers, distributors and makers of fancy foods and confections are showing their wares at the association's 11th quire. Originally, the 100-acre limit would have applied to his old and new acreage combined.

In the main, the administration's cotton program would abandon mandatory controls on cotton planting and rely on rewards to encourage a cutback in production.

Any producer could stay out of the program and plant and sell cotton without penalty at the market price.

But planters who retired up to 35 per cent of their regular cotton acreage would be guaranteed price supports on whatever cotton they grow plus payments for diverting acreage to other crops.

In committee discussions Minnesota Republican Albert H. Quie had estimated the cost of the farm bill, over its four-year life, at $18 billion.

The bill left Cooley's committee calling for a 50-cent increase to $1.25 - in the 75-cent certificates millers now must buy with each bushel of domestic wheat.

Turncoat Will Come to U.S.

HONG KONG AP -- Korean War turncoat William C. White of Plummerville, Ark., crossed the border into Hong Kong today, 11 1/2 years after he chose to stay with his communist captors.

White, a tall, soft-spoken Negro, brought his Chinese wife, son John, 6, and daughter Ann, 4, out of Red China with him. White, 35, walked across the Lowu border bridge, leading his son. His wife first led, then carried the little girl.

"I want to go home to see my family," he said. "I want to see my mother in Kansas City, Mo."

White was one of 21 Americans who were captured during the Korean War and defected. Four now are still in China; Clarence C. Adams of Memphis, Tenn., Morris Wills, Fort Ann, N.Y., Harold Webb, Fort Pierce, Fla., and John R. Dunn, Baltimore, Md.

Police Monday arrested John Wayne Stewart, 361 Magnolia, on a charge of careless and imprudent driving, and with not having a car operator's license. He was turned over to Scott county authorities on the second charge.

Kennett Girl Killed

KENNETT, Mo. AP -- Three-year-old Pamela Beck was injured fatally by a car six miles north of Kennett Monday.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Beck, was standing on a bridge watching Pamela and her other children swim, when the car approached.

The driver, Mrs. Johnnie Marilyn Robertson, 23, of White Oak said the child darted in front of the car.

She was one of two Southeast Missouri children struck on bridges in the Bootheel Monday. Ricky Pope, 14, route one, Malden, was injured in a similar accident.

Mrs. Robertson, a teacher in the Campbell school, started to take the girl to a Kennett hospital in her car but got caught in a traffic jam at a fire in town. Mrs. Robertson fainted at the wheel.

Police Judge Robert Nations, who was watching the fire, got in the car and finished the drive to the hospital. The girl was dead.

The Pope boy was standing on a highway 61 bridge banister looking down into the water when a motorist struck him and failed to stop. The accident happened at 4:30 p.m., nine miles east of Malden on highway 61.

The youth was taken to the Dunklin County Hospital in Kennett, suffering from a compound fracture of the right thigh and ankle, and then taken to the Campbell Clinic in Memphis, Tenn.

Johnny Lindley, 40, East St. Louis, was taken into custody by Poplar Bluff police, but has not admitted striking the youth, the highway patrol reported.

A 1963 GM pickup, driven by Thomas Walters, 51, Duck Hill, Miss., was struck by a 1965 Ford truck, driven by Clemens Uhrhahn, 39, Benton, as Uhrhahn pulled out from an entrance where concrete was being mixed. Uhrhahn was arrested for failure to yield right-of-way.

Industrial Output Up

WASHINGTON AP -- The nation's industrial production rose sharply in July, and the Federal Reserve Board attributed it to a high volume of output of steel, business equipment and automobiles.

One Billion Bushel Soybean Crop in Few Years Predicted

MEMPHIS, Tenn. AP -- A high official of the American Soybean Association predicted today that in only a few years U. S. soybean farmers will be producing one billion bushels per year.

George M. Strayer, executive vice president of the association, made the prediction in his report to the group's 45th annual convention in session here. "I expect to see the day when we will be producing a billion bushels," Strayer said. "And I might even see the day when we would be producing one and one-half billion bushels of soybeans per year and find markets for all of them."

Strayer said American farmers could very well produce the 864 million bushels of soybeans which the U. S. Department of

First Bodies Seen In Lake Michigan

CHICAGO AP -- A United Air Lines jet airliner with 30 aboard plunged into Lake Michigan Monday night and the first of the victims' bodies were reported sighted today.

The plane bound from New York to Chicago disappeared in a blinding flash and a roar of explosion northeast of Chicago. The lake water depth there ranges from 150 to 200 feet. James Seymour, a radio operator at Crystal Lake, Ill., reported intercepting a message from the Coast Guard Cutter Woodbine that four bodies had been recovered.

Earlier the cutter reported sighting debris and some luggage. The Woodbine is one of several vessels searching for possible survivors among the 24 passengers and crew of 6.

The Boeing 727 three-engine jet crash presumably, killed the 30 aboard.

The spokesman said the Coast Guard reported that they spotted debris and luggage about 15 miles in the lake off Waukegan, Ill., about 45 miles north of Chicago. The Woodbine, stationed at Grand Haven, Mich., was one of several boats making a search.

Thunderstorms broke out during the early morning along the north shore of Lake Michigan, hampering the search. It had passed a weak weather front successfully and was in almost calm atmosphere with good visibility when the blast wiped it off the airport radar screen.

One of those aboard was Clarence L. (Clancy) Sayen, a Seattle, Wash., businessman, who as president of the Air Line Pilots Association for nearly 11 years had worked unflinchingly for air safety legislation. Sayen, a former pilot, left ALPA in May 1962.

A spokesman for United told reporters, "I can only tell you the plane is overdue. There were 24 passengers, including, we believe, at least two children."

Planes and helicopters from Glenview Naval Air Station flew immediately to the area where the plane disappeared, but found nothing illuminated by their dropped flares. Small boats of the Coast Guard put out for the general area east of Highland Park and Ft. Sheridan Army post. These craft based at Wilmette and Waukegan were joined by dozens of small motor yachts.

One private boat, the Slow Poke, which established radio communications with the Coast Guard, reported sighting debris and some luggage.

A light vote of 2,200 has been predicted for the county, which has 14,926 registered voters.

Hot Day For Voting

ST. LOUIS AP -- Hot, humid weather greeted voters who turned out for Missouri's special election today on three constitutional amendments. In the St. Louis area, early voting was reported extremely light.

Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick has predicted only about 350,000 to 400,000 of the state's estimated 2,800,000 eligible voters would show up.

Three significant constitutional changes are on the ballot but the general citizenry showed little interest in them during the campaign.

No. 1, backed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, would allow a governor to succeed himself for a second term. It was given a chance to pass and if approved would clear the way for Hearnes to run again in 1968.

In this sense it appeared to be something of a popularity contest for the 42-year-old Democratic governor.

Proposal No. 2 roused little controversy. It would let cities sell industrial plants built with revenue bonds, something they can't do now.

Most of the conflict in the campaign centered around proposal No. 3.

It would increase the membership of the State House of Representatives from 163 to 168, allow the House to redistrict itself after each census and increase the number of legislative employees from 220 to 325.

The Senate would continue to be redistricted by a bipartisan commission such as the one now at work.

Republicans and some Democrats attacked the proposal as opening the way for outrageous gerrymandering. They said it would make the House a Democratic stronghold forever and leave only about 25 real "swing" districts which could go either way.

If adopted today -- and observer S gave it only a 50-50 chance -- it would put into effect a reapportionment bill passed by the 1965 legislature. It goes into effect Oct. 13 if the amendment is adopted.

27 Viet Cong Killed In Clash Near Border

SAIGON AP -- A Viet Nam government force killed 27 Viet Cong today in a clash 30 miles below the North Viet Nam border, a U.S. military spokesman reported.

The clash with an estimated company of guerrillas brought to 32 the total of Viet Cong killed since a search operation was launched four days ago in Ba Long Valley, the spokesman said.

Vietnamese casualties were not reported. The ground drive began after B52 bombers from Guam hit the area. The offensive was described as one of the largest government actions in months in the northernmost sector of South Viet Nam.

Six Viet Cong were captured and 28 weapons seized, the spokesman said.

Guard's shore stations, was directed to a point 11 miles due east of Ft. Sheridan estimated by the Federal Aviation Agency as the last radar fix point.

Capt. Gerald T. Applegate of the Coast Guard said the Slow Poke reported a strong odor of diesel oil, but nothing else.

The plane, United's Flight 389, was commanded by Capt. Melville W. Towle, 42, of Wyckoff, N. J., father of four children. Minutes before the tragedy, he radioed for landing instructions and acknowledged an order from the O'Hare tower to enter a pattern. He gave no intimation of trouble.

Flying the plane with him was First Officer Roger M. Whitezell, 34, of North Plainfield, N.J., and Maurice L. Femmer, 26, of Elmont, N. Y., the second officer.

Three stewardesses in the plane were Phyllis M. Rickert, 22, of Chicago; Sandra H. Fuller, 20, of Mount Prospect, Ill.; and Jewel G. Beaver, 20, of Long Beach, Calif.

They had left La Guardia Airport on Long Island at 8:52 p.m., and would have made their scheduled landing at 9:27 p.m.

20 Years for De Angelis

NEWARK, N. J. AP -- Anthony Tino DeAngelis was sentenced to 20 years in federal prison today on charges of conspiracy and fraud stemming from the collapse of his multimillion vegetable oil empire.

He drew two consecutive 10-year sentences, along with concurrent terms of five and 10 years on four separate counts to which he had pleaded guilty.

DeAngelis had been given a nominal maximum sentence of 10 years in May on the same charges. However, the judge invoked a seldom used federal law which provided that he be brought back to court in three months for reconsideration.

DeAngelis pleaded guilty Jan. 8 to circulating fraudulent warehouse receipts and admitted conspiring to circulate $100 million in forged receipts.

He built the nation's largest vegetable oil refining operation in Bayonne in 1955.

When the firm plunged into bankruptcy in November 1963, creditors found nearly empty storage tanks.

Creditors holding worthless receipts filed claims totaling $190 million against two storage companies whose job it was to verify that the commodities listed were in the tanks. In all, about 15 companies filed for bankruptcy as the scandal unfolded.

Path of Farm Bill Smoothed by Changes

WASHINGTON AP -- The House today takes up the administration's farm bill, its path smoothed by a decision to drop the provision critics called a "bread tax."

The decision to have the Treasury carry the burden of higher payments to wheat growers was reached Monday night at a session in Speaker John W. McCormack's office.

Designed to win back big city Democrats who had threatened to jump the traces on the bread issue, it brightens President Johnson's chances of one more legislative victory. He has yet to be beaten on a major bill this session.

"This pulls the rug out from those who have been talking about a bread tax," said Rep. Harold D. Cooley, D-N. C., chairman of the House Agriculture Committee.

The conferees - among them Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman and Lawrence F. O'Brien, the President's top liaison man with Congress - decided also to make four changes in the cotton section, only a little less controversial than the embattled wheat position.

"This would take out most of the objectionable features of the bill," Cooley said.

Four changes in the cotton section of the bill were decided on at Monday night's session. They will be offered as amendments by a member of the Agriculture Committee, probably Rep. Phillip M. Landrum, D-Ga.

One would permit the transfer of released acreage across county lines within the state, as permitted under present law.

A second would permit unlimited planting only on a farm which had an acreage allotment this year.

A third would permit payments to a planter for retiring 15 per cent of his acreage even if he acquired new cotton acreage. But he would not be paid for retiring 15 per cent of the new acreage.

The fourth would limit to 100 acres the new farm acreage allotment a planter could acquire.

Turncoat Will Come to U.S.

HONG KONG AP -- Korean War turncoat William C. White of Plummerville, Ark., crossed the border into Hong Kong today, 11 1/2 years after he chose to stay with his communist captors.

White, a tall, soft-spoken Negro, brought his Chinese wife, son John, 6, and daughter Ann, 4, out of Red China with him.

White, 35, walked across the Lowu border bridge, leading his son. His wife first led, then carried the little girl.

"I want to go home to see my family," he said. "I want to see my mother in Kansas City, Mo."

White was one of 21 Americans who were captured during the Korean War and defected. Four now are still in China; Clarence C. Adams of Memphis, Tenn., Morris Willis, Fort Ann, N.Y., Harold Webb, Fort Pierce, Fla., and John R. Dunn, Baltimore, Md.

The strike has tied up about 100 merchant ships, and President Johnson Monday called for their "speedy resumption of operation."

He directed Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz to report to him by 5 p.m. Wednesday on the possibility of getting the ships sailing again.

Kennett Girl Killed

KENNETT, Mo. AP -- Three-year-old Pamela Beck was injured fatally by a car six miles north of Kennett Monday.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Beck, was standing on a bridge watching Pamela and her other children swim, when the car approached.

The driver, Mrs. Johnnie Marilyn Robertson, 23, of White Oak said the child darted in front of the car.

She was one of two Southeast Missouri children struck on bridges in the Bootheel Monday. Ricky Pope, 14, route one, Malden, was injured in a similar accident.

Mrs. Robertson, a teacher in the Campbell school, started to take the girl to a Kennett hospital in her car but got caught in a traffic jam at a fire in town. Mrs. Robertson fainted at the wheel.

Police Judge Robert Nations, who was watching the fire, got in the car and finished the drive to the hospital. The girl was dead.

The Pope boy was standing on a highway 61 bridge banister looking down into the water when a motorist struck him and failed to stop. The accident happened at 4:30 p.m., nine miles east of Malden on highway 61.

The youth was taken to the Dunklin County Hospital in Kennett, suffering from a compound fracture of the right thigh and ankle, and then taken to the Campbell Clinic in Memphis, Tenn.

Johnny Lindley, 40, East St. Louis, was taken into custody by Poplar Bluff police, but has not admitted striking the youth, the highway patrol reported.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Tuesday, August 17 Nat Hawthorne mails scarlet letter. 1832.

Time brings changes. Not all of them are welcome. Some may not be in the best long range interest of the country or of the area. These thoughts plus those of a nostalgic and sentimental nature come to mind with the announcement that the Frisco is going to abandon all passenger service through Sikeston.

For several years the railroad has been fighting a losing battle financially with this link between St. Louis and Memphis. It cannot be blamed for abandoning a service that is so little used that it cannot operate profitably.

It is true that not all of the failure to make a profit is the public's fault if it might be called that. Railroads made a vigorous attempt to keep passenger traffic in this air age earlier in the century. They have long since abandoned any effort to attract patronage. Railroads are buried in the aspect of decay.

In recent years the emphasis has been on discouraging passenger traffic while seeking the profitable freight hauling portion of the railroad business. Depots have been permitted to deteriorate. Road beds have gotten rough and bumpy. Railroad passenger hauling equipment has become old and decrepit. The experience of riding on trains generally is not as pleasant as it once was. There are exceptions but they are isolated.

Many persons regard railroads as old and venerable friends but the former emphasis on service has eroded along with all the other aspects that made riding a train one of pleasant entertainment.

Still the thought of terminating the Frisco trains, which have been so firmly tied to Sikeston's history and evoke so many pleasant memories, is disquieting. Even the sound of the trains will be missed.

Many residents took their first train trip on the Frisco from Sikeston. Many youngsters have never taken a train trip. Some of them don't care but they will have missed something.

What stories these trains, soon to be abandoned, could tell about the life of the community and the people that they have served so faithfully for so many years.

People today travel in their own cars, by the excellent service offered by buses in Sikeston and by commercial airlines from neighboring cities.

None of them ever will take the place of the train. In the heart of Sikeston residents yet to see the methods of transportation that on the basis of use the public obviously prefers.

If that weren't true the existence of railroad passenger traffic would not now be threatened. Will the country ever need passenger trains during a war or other national emergency? It will be unfortunate if the buses, passenger cars and trucks and the airplanes are unable to handle the nation's needs efficiently because once dropped railroad passenger service cannot be quickly reclaimed.

There is one thing sure. Something valuable passes from Sikeston's life with the passing of the Frisco passenger trains.

ANCIENT CROP

The soybean, native of Eastern Asia, is one of the oldest crops known to man. It was described in a Chinese book on medicine written in 2838 B. C. The first soybeans were brought to America in 1804, but the bean did not become important commercially until late in the nineteenth century.

It's a pity that the federal government escapes criticism by shifting either the blame or the burden on others. The Social Security tax furnishes a perfect example. The people permit it to be raised time and again but when the increased deductions take more from the pay check, employees have learned to expect their employer to raise their pay so that the increase won't hurt. There are millions of employees who can't tell anyone what their weekly wage is. They only know what their take-home pay is.

Prospective employees always say that they would like to clear so much when applying for a job. They never merely ask for a wage any more.

Letting the boss worry about Social Security and other tax deductions has become a national attitude. This effort to pass the buck wouldn't be so alarming if it didn't cause people to be unconcerned and indifferent about the taxes they pay.

This isn't good for them because they are the government whether they want to take the responsibility or not and the indifferent and apathetic state of mind certainly isn't good for government.

But the attitude has been good for some politicians. It keeps the spenders in office. A publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce points out that a combined rate of 10 per cent for Social Security tax, half paid by employer and half paid by employee, long has been regarded as a ceiling. Workers are supposed to resist endangering the Social Security structure when it goes above it.

Under present law the rate is scheduled to reach a minimum of 9.25 per cent in 1968. If a pending bill becomes law the combined rate will rise to 11 per cent by 1973 and 11 1/2 per cent by 1987. Maximum earnings subject to tax would be increased from $4,800 a year to $6,600 in 1966.

The prospects of such big sums being withheld from pay checks will not cause the American worker any concern.

He is not going to pay any attention to these increases as long as his own wages continue to rise, covering the increase and providing even more take home pay.

He will be concerned when his employer can no longer grant him pay increases but must either maintain wage levels or lay off employees. By then it will be too late because once any condition is established by the federal government it is completely inflexible and it clings like a leech.

There is no end in sight for higher and higher taxes by politicians who have discovered that more spending is a sure-fire formula to win re-election.

A STRANGE KIND OF LIBERTY

The chief losers if 14b is repealed are relatively few in number, and have little political muscle: They're the workers who want the right, if they don't like a particular union, or its leaders, or its policies, or if they simply cherish their independence, not to join. It's extraordinary that a nation so dedicated to liberty should want to take away that right; and that compulsory unionism should become a rallying-cry of people calling themselves "liberals." But we live in a strange world, even here at the gateway to the Great Society.

New York Herald-Tribune

Last year when strikes closed newspapers in New York and Cleveland the business community was aware that retail sales had been seriously affected.

Sales figures have been released which indicate specifically how serious the losses to retail stores were. In Cleveland, according to Federal Reserve figures, department store sales ran 21 per cent below the previous year.

In New York the weekly losses to department stores because of the newspaper strike was 11 per cent. This loss came about in spite of the fact that the New York stores used many substitute outlets for advertising including quickly organized newspapers, increased radio and television advertising, and increased use of circulars.

During the period of this strike other cities were experiencing great sales increases, some running as high as 60 per cent. This means that sales in stores where tests were made--that is, Gimbels and Macys--might have been 75 per cent higher if the stores had had the use of their local newspapers.

The effects on hundreds of smaller businesses which depend upon the movement of consumer traffic in the shopping center was probably even more pronounced. Consumers do not use small specialty shops, service establishments, and entertainment facilities unless they have come to town to make purchases which they have seen advertised in the newspaper.

RIGHT TO SAY NO?

PRESIDENT JOHNSON has raised a fundamental democratic issue with his request that Congress abolish so-called "right-to-work" laws.

These laws now exist in 19 states. Basically, they prohibit the compulsory "union shop," which rules that a worker cannot hold a job in a particular shop unless he is a union member.

We are for labor unions. The Hearst Newspapers were among the first in the newspaper industry to reach agreements with labor unions.

But we are also for freedom of job choice, and opposed to compulsion by Government legislation. It seems elementary that no one should be compelled to join a union if he doesn't want to, just as no businessman should be compelled to join any commercial organization.

We have found ourselves in agreement with most things LBJ has done. We feel that in most matters we think as the President does. Our thinking usually being alike, we have often concurred with his views.

We are, for example, wholeheartedly in favor of his proposals to reduce excise taxes by $3.9 billion. This will help reduce car prices, and we're all for that. And we are with him all the way on foreign policy.

But we think he is wrong in urging abolition of laws which give a worker the right to belong or not to belong to a union, and urge him to reconsider his request to Congress.

MONEY MATTER

The motto, "In God We Trust", has appeared on U. S. coins since 1964, but was not included on paper currency until 1957. The idea for using the motto is credited to a Reverend Watkinson of Pennsylvania who wrote to the Secretary of Treasury in 1861, suggesting that God be recognized on the country's coins. The Secretary, Salmon P. Chase, asked James Pollock, director of the mint in Philadelphia, to prepare a motto, and "In God We Trust" appeared for the first time on a two-cent piece in 1864.

Drunk drivers will be given tests beginning October 13 of this year. This will be done in accordance with the Implied Consent and Chemical Test Bill passed by the 73rd Missouri General Assembly.

This safety bill implies that a person has agreed to a chemical test when he operates a motor vehicle on a Missouri highway. The law requires those persons arrested for driving while intoxicated to take a chemical breath test to determine the alcoholic content of the blood. Refusal by a person to take the test will result in the revocation of that person's license to drive.

The purpose of the chemical analysis of a driver's breath is to measure the amount of alcohol in the blood which is the criteria for intoxication. This testing process has been medically recognized as being accurate in determining the amount of alcohol that might have been consumed.

It should be noted that while these tests will confirm intoxication in some cases, they will also exonerate drivers. The tests may establish the fact that the alcohol concentration in the blood is so small the driver cannot be considered intoxicated.

The basis of the implied consent provision of this law is that driving is a privilege. When a driver exercises his privilege to drive upon the streets and highways, he is considered to have agreed to submit to the chemical test. Refusal by the individual to take the test results in the suspension of the driving privilege.

Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, the Superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, commenting on this new legislation said, "The chemical test law will aid greatly in the prosecution of 'driving while intoxicated' violations. It will help rid the highways of those drivers who get behind the wheel in an intoxicated condition, endangering not only their lives but those of the innocent as well."

It would seem apparent that some are carrying on their own private war on poverty by recognizing there is prosperity in progeny.

This is indicated by one of the respondents in the current year long survey on employment matters being conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business. This respondent, an operator in a rural Florida citrus fruit center employing 41 people reports difficulty in hiring more people. He cited one man, offered a job at $325 per month who turned it down with the comment, "I have seven children, so I get $350 per month welfare; no I do not think I want to work."

Thus, although Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz feels that a wage rate of $1.40 per hour can attract agricultural labor, it would appear his position is entirely too conservative. After all, $325 per month for 4 1/3 weeks of 40 hours each figures out at $1.68 per hour which is below the tax free income possible for fathering seven children.

While many independent businessmen are noting that labor is hard to get because of high, tax-free welfare payments, this particular respondent cited an actual instance. It makes one wonder just what Benjamin Franklin had in mind when he wrote "Early to bed, at, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Battle of the Bread Trust comes to a climax in the Senate today (August 17) with debate on the administration's omnibus Farm Bill which provides, among other things, for 100 per cent parity payments to American wheat farmers.

The Bread Trust claims this would increase the price of bread to American housewives two cents a loaf and has hired the very able Maurice Rosenblatt, former mainspring of the committee for an effective Congress, as its lobbyist.

Rosenblatt, who helped pay the campaign expenses of a lot of congressmen, has swung some votes in favor of the bakeries. Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has countered with figures showing that the cost of bread would go up 7/10 of a cent; has also produced convincing facts showing that during the past 15 years the price of wheat to the farmer has remained exactly the same while the price of bread charged to the housewife has almost doubled. It's gone up from 13.5 cents to 21-31 cents.

The Battle of Bread has continued to be a bitter one, with the bread companies spending a lot of money on handbills distributed in grocery stores, fliers stuck to bread wrappers, and with lobbying groups brought to Washington to protest to congressmen against the "Bread tax."

--"NO BREAD TRUST" WE--

The Bread Trust gets very indignant when it's called a "Trust." And it is true that a lot of small bakeries are involved in the lobbying battle which might have a hard time absorbing the 7/10 of a cent increased cost of wheat. However, the Justice Department has just finished prosecuting two of the most active bakeries in the lobby against the farm bill -- The American Bakeries Co. and the Ward Baking Co.

On March 6, 1961, a Federal Grand Jury in Jacksonville, Fla., indicted both companies for combining with three other companies to fix prices on sales of bread and cake to U.S. Naval installations around Jacksonville. In 1963 the "Bread Trust" pleaded no contest and its members were fined.

On July 21, 1961, a civil suit was filed against American Bakeries, Ward E. Al, which resulted in a fine of $44,000 for making false claims; also a permanent injunction against them for rigging bids or fixing prices.

The vote on the Bread Tax will probably come this week.

--COTTON LOBBYISTS-- Chief senatorial opposition to the cotton section of the Farm Bill is Big Jim Eastland, cigar chomping senator from Mississippi; also lobbyists representing the ginners, crushers, warehousemen and fertilizer companies. The latter lobbyists want big acreages and a big cotton surplus, because the bigger the acreage, the more fertilizer they can sell, the more cotton they can store and gin and the more seed they can crush. Some warehouses are still storing cotton for more than five years with the U.S. taxpayers footing the storage bill.

Inside reason why Sen. Eastland doesn't like the cotton section of the Farm Bill is because it calls for direct payments to the farmer rather than loans. And Jim, as one of the bigger cotton growers in the southeast, isn't enthusiastic about having the voters know how much direct cotton money he would get from the government.

Jim has two farming operations, one of 744 acres with a cotton allotment of 189.9 acres; the other, called Eastland Plantations, totals 5,600 acres and has a cotton allotment of 1,586.7 acres.

At present he gets a government loan on his cotton, and when he doesn't pay back the loan -- which is customary if prices go down -- the government takes over the cotton. If prices go up, then cotton farmers reclaim their cotton and sell it.

--ANTI-SOCIALIST ORATOR-- Under the present Farm Bill however, Eastland would get a direct cotton payment, not a loan. For most farmers this would mean more money. But the money would be paid direct and therefore the public would know how much Sen. Eastland, an eloquent orator against socialism in government, received from "socialistic" payments.

Jim Eastland is also obstinate because his old friend Dr. Jerry Sayre operates the staple cotton cooperative in Greenwood, Miss. It's customary for the cotton co-ops to take in the cotton crop, all guaranteed by government loan, comb out the best cotton, which continues to pay storage on it for years and years.

Another cotton co-op which is lobbying against the cotton section of the bill is the Plains Cotton Co. of Lubbock, Texas, which is giving Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., a hard time. Mahon, however, remains loyal to his old friend President Johnson.

--UNDER THE DOME--

Sen. John Williams, R-DeL., has notified Justice Department officials that he is holding up his attacks on Bobby Baker until the Grand Jury acts. If Baker is not indicted, Williams threatened to renew his attacks on the Senate floor. Ex-Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida, now Under Secretary of Commerce, has sounded out both Florida senators about sup-

VIETNAM CHALLENGE In a real crisis, Americans close ranks.

Our policy in Vietnam has been attacked from many different standpoints, both in the past and present. Some would always have had us withdraw and leave that unhappy land at the mercy of Red conquerors. --IMPORTANT U.S. PEACE--

In a secret, six-page addendum to friendly governments maintaining contacts with Hanoi, the United States has declared its willingness to offer North Viet Nam another bombing truce -- longer than the first -- if the Hanoi government will give some indication that it will talk peace.

"The United States Government does not rule out the possibility of another and more prolonged cessation of the bombing of North Viet Nam," the document states. "In return, the United States has asked for some clear indication from Hanoi that there would take place a cessation in the infiltration of military personnel and equipment into South Viet Nam and the above all, a sharp reduction in the level of military activity and terrorism in South Viet Nam, which is made possible by North Vietnamese support."

This secret addendum goes further in offering the Olive Branch in Southeast Asia than any other peace feeler so far. It stresses that America is willing to return to the main points of the 1954 Geneva Agreement on Viet Nam. These are re-stated as follows:

1. An end to aggression and subversion.
2. Freedom for South Viet Nam to choose its own destiny.
3. Withdrawal of all foreign military personnel as soon as aggression ends.
4. An effective guarantee for the independence, safety, and freedom of the South Vietnamese people.

If the North Vietnamese leaders won't come to the bargaining table to discuss a peace settlement, the United States is ready to sit down with them for a conference on Laos or Cambodia. The hope would be that the conference might get around to discussing the Viet Nam problem without loss of face for the Communists, who technically would not have backed down from their refusal to discuss a settlement as long as American troops remain in the country.

The aide-memoire raised two key questions: Do the North Vietnamese insist on a Saigon Government dominated by the Communists? And will they persist in demanding that the Americans pull out without talking? If the Hanoi government won't soften its stand on these two points, then a peaceful settlement will be impossible.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Tuesday, August 17 Nat Hawthorne mails scarlet letter. 1832.

Time brings changes. Not all of them are welcome. Some may not be in the best long range interest of the country or of the area. These thoughts plus those of a nostalgic and sentimental nature come to mind with the announcement that the Frisco is going to abandon all passenger service through Sikeston.

For several years the railroad has been fighting a losing battle financially with this link between St. Louis and Memphis. It cannot be blamed for abandoning a service that is so little used that it cannot operate profitably.

It is true that not all of the failure to make a profit is the public's fault if it might be called that. Railroads made a vigorous attempt to keep passenger traffic in this air age earlier in the century. They have long since abandoned any effort to attract patronage. Railroads are buried in the aspect of decay.

In recent years the emphasis has been on discouraging passenger traffic while seeking the profitable freight hauling portion of the railroad business. Depots have been permitted to deteriorate. Road beds have gotten rough and bumpy. Railroad passenger hauling equipment has become old and decrepit. The experience of riding on trains generally is not as pleasant as it once was. There are exceptions but they are isolated.

Many persons regard railroads as old and venerable friends but the former emphasis on service has eroded along with all the other aspects that made riding a train one of pleasant entertainment.

Still the thought of terminating the Frisco trains, which have been so firmly tied to Sikeston's history and evoke so many pleasant memories, is disquieting. Even the sound of the trains will be missed.

Many residents took their first train trip on the Frisco from Sikeston. Many youngsters have never taken a train trip. Some of them don't care but they will have missed something.

What stories these trains, soon to be abandoned, could tell about the life of the community and the people that they have served so faithfully for so many years.

People today travel in their own cars, by the excellent service offered by buses in Sikeston and by commercial airlines from neighboring cities.

None of them ever will take the place of the train in the hearts of Sikeston residents yet another method of transportation that on the basis of use the public obviously prefers.

If that weren't true the existence of railroad passenger traffic would not now be threatened.

Will the country ever need passenger trains during a war or other national emergency? It will be unfortunate if the buses, passenger cars and trucks and the airplanes are unable to handle the nation's needs efficiently because once dropped railroad passenger service cannot be quickly reclaimed.

There is one thing sure. Something valuable passes from Sikeston's life with the passing of the Frisco passenger trains.

ANCIENT CROP

The soybean, native of Eastern Asia, is one of the oldest crops known to man. It was described in a Chinese book on medicine written in 2838 B. C. The first soybeans were brought to America in 1804, but the bean did not become important commercially until late in the nineteenth century.

It's a pity that the federal government escapes criticism by shifting either the blame or the burden on others.

The Social Security tax furnishes a perfect example.

The people permit it to be raised time and again but when the increased deductions take more from the pay check, employees have learned to expect their employer to raise their pay so that the increase won't hurt. There are millions of employees who can't tell anyone what their weekly wage is. They only know what their take-home pay is.

Prospective employees always say that they would like to clear so much when applying for a job. They never merely ask for a wage any more.

Letting the boss worry about Social Security and other tax deductions has become a national attitude. This effort to pass the buck wouldn't be so alarming if it didn't cause people to be unconcerned and indifferent about the taxes they pay.

This isn't good for them because they are the government whether they want to take the responsibility or not and the indifferent and apathetic state of mind certainly isn't good for government.

But the attitude has been good for some politicians. It keeps the spenders in office.

A publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce points out that a combined rate of 10 per cent for Social Security tax, half paid by employer and half paid by employee, long has been regarded as a ceiling. Workers are supposed to resist endangering the Social Security structure when it goes above it.

Under present law the rate is scheduled to reach a minimum of 9.25 per cent in 1968. If a pending bill becomes law the combined rate will rise to 11 per cent by 1973 and 11 1/2 per cent by 1987. Maximum earnings subject to tax would be increased from $4,800 a year to $6,600 in 1966.

The prospects of such big sums being withheld from pay checks will not cause the American worker any concern.

He is not going to pay any attention to these increases as long as his own wages continue to rise, covering the increase and providing even more take home pay.

He will be concerned when his employer can no longer grant him pay increases but must either maintain wage levels or lay off employees. By then it will be too late because once any condition is established by the federal government it is completely inflexible and it clings like a leech.

There is no end in sight for higher and higher taxes by politicians who have discovered that more spending is a sure-fire formula to win re-election.

A STRANGE KIND OF LIBERTY

The chief losers if 14b is repealed are relatively few in number, and have little political muscle: They're the workers who want the right, if they don't like a particular union, or its leaders, or its policies, or if they simply cherish their independence, not to join. It's extraordinary that a nation so dedicated to liberty should want to take away that right; and that compulsory unionism should become a rallying-cry of people calling themselves "liberals." But we live in a strange world, even here at the gateway to the Great Society.

New York Herald-Tribune

Last year when strikes closed newspapers in New York and Cleveland the business community was aware that retail sales had been seriously affected.

Sales figures have been released which indicate specifically how serious the losses to retail stores were. In Cleveland, according to Federal Reserve figures, department store sales ran 21 per cent below the previous year.

In New York the weekly losses to department stores because of the newspaper strike was 11 per cent. This loss came about in spite of the fact that the New York stores used many substitute outlets for advertising including quickly organized newspapers, increased radio and television advertising, and increased use of circulars.

During the period of this strike other cities were experiencing great sales increases, some running as high as 60 per cent. This means that sales in stores where tests were made--that is, Gimbels and Macys--might have been 75 per cent higher if the stores had had the use of their local newspapers.

The effects on hundreds of smaller businesses which depend upon the movement of consumer traffic in the shopping center was probably even more pronounced. Consumers do not use small specialty shops, service establishments, and entertainment facilities unless they have come to town to make purchases which they have seen advertised in the newspaper.

RIGHT TO SAY NO?

PRESIDENT JOHNSON has raised a fundamental democratic issue with his request that Congress abolish so-called "right-to-work" laws.

These laws now exist in 19 states. Basically, they prohibit the compulsory "union shop," which rules that a worker cannot hold a job in a particular shop unless he is a union member.

We are for labor unions. The Hearst Newspapers were among the first in the newspaper industry to reach agreements with labor unions.

But we are also for freedom of job choice, and opposed to compulsion by Government legislation. It seems elementary that no one should be compelled to join a union if he doesn't want to, just as no businessman should be compelled to join any commercial organization.

We have found ourselves in agreement with most things LBJ has done. We feel that in most matters we think as the President does. Our thinking usually being alike, we have often concurred with his views.

We are, for example, wholeheartedly in favor of his proposals to reduce excise taxes by $3.9 billion. This will help reduce car prices, and we're all for that. And we are with him all the way on foreign policy.

But we think he is wrong in urging abolition of laws which give a worker the right to belong or not to belong to a union, and urge him to reconsider his request to Congress.

MONEY MATTER

The motto, "In God We Trust", has appeared on U. S. coins since 1964, but was not included on paper currency until 1957. The idea for using the motto is credited to a Reverend Watkinson of Pennsylvania who wrote to the Secretary of Treasury in 1861, suggesting that God be recognized on the country's coins. The Secretary, Salmon P. Chase, asked James Pollock, director of the mint in Philadelphia, to prepare a motto, and "In God We Trust" appeared for the first time on a two-cent piece in 1864.

Drunk drivers will be given tests beginning October 13 of this year. This will be done in accordance with the Implied Consent and Chemical Test Bill passed by the 73rd Missouri General Assembly.

This safety bill implies that a person has agreed to a chemical test when he operates a motor vehicle on a Missouri highway. The law requires those persons arrested for driving while intoxicated to take a chemical breath test to determine the alcoholic content of the blood. Refusal by a person to take the test will result in the revocation of that person's license to drive.

The purpose of the chemical analysis of a driver's breath is to measure the amount of alcohol in the blood which is the criteria for intoxication. This testing process has been medically recognized as being accurate in determining the amount of alcohol that might have been consumed.

It should be noted that while these tests will confirm intoxication in some cases, they will also exonerate drivers. The tests may establish the fact that the alcohol concentration in the blood is so small the driver cannot be considered intoxicated.

The basis of the implied consent provision of this law is that driving is a privilege. When a driver exercises his privilege to drive upon the streets and highways, he is considered to have agreed to submit to the chemical test. Refusal by the individual to take the test results in the suspension of the driving privilege.

Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, the Superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, commenting on this new legislation said, "The chemical test law will aid greatly in the prosecution of 'driving while intoxicated' violations. It will help rid the highways of those drivers who get behind the wheel in an intoxicated condition, endangering not only their lives but those of the innocent as well."

CHICAGO AP--Pride and envy ride tandem within me whenever my No. 3 son, Joe, gets decked out in his Boy Scout uniform.

More than thrice his age, I am only a lowly tenderfoot, out-decorated, outranked and just plain out. But with valid reason. In the chilly, rainy June of 1923 I reported for a week's camping at Indian Mound Reservation on the shores of Silver Lake, Wis., rich in the lore of the Chippewas, the Outagamies and a Sioux or so.

Signaling was the one test I needed to pass from tenderfoot to second-class scout. And I had a whole week to learn the 25 letters of the alphabet I did not know. The illustration on the cover of the "Scout Handbook for Boys" in those days showed a scout signaling the letter "L" so everybody knew how to wig-wag that.

While other scouts prowled through the poison ivy or blazed trails that had been pretty well hacked up by preceding bands of campers, I practiced my signals. Then came the final test. A scoutmaster took his stand 100 yards away and directed that I transmit first, I semaphored some real sharp ones like, "England expects every man to do his duty" and "You may fire when you are ready, Gridley."

My examiner nodded approval and began to signal to me. I pulled out a pencil and paper and began to copy his message which, with dots denoting letters I missed, began:

"Ouf, faher wh...ar, in .eav.n, .allow,d be th, name th, kin,dom come th, will..."

About there it became clear that my man was transmitting the Lord's Prayer. I simply watched his signals, jotted a word now and then until he signed off.

I handed him my copy, ready for him to shake my hand in welcome to second-class level. He read it slower than seemed necessary, then said:

"If we ever go to war again, which I'm positive we won't all I hope is that you will not be the signalman on the admiral's flagship."

"Why, what's wrong?" I asked.

"What's wrong?" he repeated. "What's all this about 'Tres-passes'? And how come you left off the whole finish; for Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever..."

They say a person learns something new every day. That day I hit the daily double. I learned: 1. There is more than one version of the Lord's Prayer; and 2. Never trust a scoutmaster.

It would seem apparent that some are carrying on their own private war on poverty by recognizing there is prosperity in progeny.

This is indicated by one of the respondents in the current year long survey on employment matters being conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business. This respondent, an operator in a rural Florida citrus fruit center employing 41 people reports difficulty in hiring more people.

He cited one man, offered a job at $325 per month who turned it down with the comment, "I have seven children, so I get $350 per month welfare; no I do not think I want to work."

Thus, although Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz feels that a wage rate of $1.40 per hour can attract agricultural labor, it would appear his position is entirely too conservative. After all, $325 per month for 4 1/3 weeks of 40 hours each figures out at $1.88 per hour which is below the tax free income possible for fathering seven children.

While many independent businessmen are noting that labor is hard to get because of high, tax-free welfare payments, this particular respondent cited an actual instance.

It makes one wonder just what Benjamin Franklin had in mind when he wrote "Early to bed, et al, makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise."

WASHINGTON -- The Battle of the Bread Trust comes to a climax in the Senate today (August 17) with debate on the administration's omnibus Farm Bill which provides, among other things, for 100 per cent parity payments to American wheat farmers.

The Bread Trust claims this would increase the price of bread to American housewives two cents a loaf and has hired the very able Maurice Rosenblatt, former mainspring of the committee for an effective Congress, as its lobbyist.

The Battle of Bread has continued to be a bitter one, with the bread companies spending a lot of money on handbills distributed in grocery stores, fliers stuck to bread wrappers, and with lobbying groups brought to Washington to protest to congressmen against the "Bread tax."

--"NO BREAD TRUST" WE-- The Bread Trust gets very indignant when it's called a "Trust." And it is true that a lot of small bakeries are involved in the lobbying battle which might have a hard time absorbing the 7/10 of a cent increased cost of wheat.

However, the Justice Department has just finished prosecuting two of the most active bakeries in the lobby against the farm bill -- The American Bakeries Co. and the Ward Baking Co.

On March 6, 1961, a Federal Grand Jury in Jacksonville, Fla., indicted both companies for combining with three other companies to fix prices on sales of bread and cake to U.S. Naval installations around Jacksonville. In 1963 the "Bread Trust" pleaded no contest and its members were fined.

The vote on the Bread Tax will probably come this week.

--COTTON LOBBYISTS-- Chief senatorial opposition to the cotton section of the Farm Bill is Big Jim Eastland, cigar chomping senator from Mississippi; also lobbyists representing the ginners, crushers, warehousemen and fertilizer companies. The latter lobbyists want big acreages and a big cotton surplus, because the bigger the acreage, the more fertilizer they can sell, the more cotton they can store and gin and the more seed they can crush. Some warehouses are still storing cotton for more than five years with the U.S. taxpayers footing the storage bill.

Inside reason why Sen. Eastland doesn't like the cotton section of the Farm Bill is because it calls for direct payments to the farmer rather than loans. And Jim, as one of the bigger cotton growers in the southeast, isn't enthusiastic about having the voters know how much direct cotton money he would get from the government.

Jim has two farming operations, one of 744 acres with a cotton allotment of 189.9 acres; the other, called Eastland Plantations, totals 5,600 acres and has a cotton allotment of 1,586.7 acres.

At present he gets a government loan on his cotton, and when he doesn't pay back the loan -- which is customary if prices go down -- the government takes over the cotton. If prices go up, then cotton farmers reclaim their cotton and sell it.

--ANTI-SOCIALIST ORATOR-- Under the present Farm Bill however, Eastland would get a direct cotton payment, not a loan. For most farmers this would mean more money. But the money would be paid direct and therefore the public would know how much Sen. Eastland, an eloquent orator against socialism in government, received from "socialistic" payments.

Jim Eastland is also obstinate because his old friend Dr. Jerry Sayre operates the staple cotton cooperative in Greenwood, Miss.

It's customary for the cotton co-ops to take in the cotton crop, all guaranteed by government loan, comb out the best cotton, which continues to pay storage on it for years and years.

--UNDER THE DOME-- Sen. John Williams, R-Del., has notified Justice Department officials that he is holding up his attacks on Bobby Baker until the Grand Jury acts. If Baker is not indicted, Williams threatened to renew his attacks on the Senate floor.

Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida, now Under Secretary of Commerce, has sounded out both Florida senators about supporting him for the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. He told them he would abandon his ambition to run for the senate if he could get appointed to the 5th circuit. He isn't seeking an immediate appointment -- just a future vacancy.

--IMPORTANT U.S. FEELER--

In a secret, six-page aide-memoire to friendly governments maintaining contacts with Hanoi, the United States has declared its willingness to offer North Viet Nam another bombing truce -- longer than the first -- if the Hanoi government will give some indication that it will talk peace.

"The United States Government does not rule out the possibility of another and more prolonged cessation of the bombing of North Viet Nam," the document states. "In return, the United States has asked for some clear indication from Hanoi that there would take place a cessation in the infiltration of military personnel and equipment into South Viet Nam and, above all, a sharp reduction in the level of military activity and terrorism in South Viet Nam, which is made possible by North Vietnamese support."

This secret aide-memoire goes further in offering the Olive Branch in Southeast Asia than any other peace feeler so far.

It stresses that America is willing to return to the main points of the 1954 Geneva Agreement on Viet Nam. These are re-stated as follows:

1. An end to aggression and subversion.
2. Freedom for South Viet Nam to choose its own destiny.
3. Withdrawal of all foreign military personnel as soon as aggression ends.
4. An effective guarantee for the independence, safety, and freedom of the South Vietnamese people.

If the North Vietnamese leaders won't come to the bargaining table to discuss a peace settlement, the United States is ready to sit down with them for a conference on Laos or Cambodia. The hope would be that the conference might get around to discussing the Viet Nam problem without loss of face for the Communists, who technically would not have backed down from their refusal to discuss a settlement as long as American troops remain in the country.

The aide-memoire raised two key questions: Do the North Vietnamese insist on a Saigon Government dominated by the Communists? And will they persist in demanding that the Americans pull out without talking.

If the Hanoi government won't soften its stand on these two points, then a peaceful settlement will be impossible.

Miss Loretta James accompanied Robert Ray as he sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau de sole. The dress was topped with a lace jacket styled with long tapered sleeves that came to points over the wrists. Pearl buttons closed the sleeves.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I just came from my mother's funeral. She was almost 80 years old and a truly fine person.

Mother enjoyed good health up until about three years ago. When her health began to fail, her friends began to fail her, too. The amazing thing about mother's funeral was that dozens of nieces, nephews, neighbors, cousins -- people I hadn't seen in years -- all showed up. I was sorely tempted to ask them why they didn't come to see her when she would have enjoyed the visit -- instead of waiting until now. For weeks mother sat by the window watching the people pass. She was lonely so much of the time it was heartbreaking.

I know a lot of folks read your column. Perhaps some of your readers will recognize themselves in this letter. If you don't bother to go see someone when they are alive I think it is hypocritical to go see them when they are dead. It means only that you don't really care to see them -- just that you want to be SEEN at the funeral.

--DAUGHTER

Dear Daughter: Thank you for a provocative letter. I couldn't agree more.

Dear Ann Landers: Ever since I married this conceited jackass it's been the same old story. Whenever we go where there is dance music he's the first one on the floor. He does a few turns with me and then he looks for someone he'd rather dance with. The minute he spots a good-looking girl he grabs her. Her partner, of course, must dance with me.

I've tried to explain to my husband that the woman may prefer to dance with the man she has. But, oh no, he doesn't see that at all. He thinks he's the first choice of every woman in the world.

Some of those men who have had beautiful young things snatched out of their arms and got me instead have not been very pleased about it and I don't blame them. Any suggestions? --NO TROPHY WINNER

Dear No Winner: Tell the egomaniac the next time he pulls that stunt you will walk off the dance floor and leave him to fight it out with the man whose partner he is trying to grab. Then do it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to a nice man for 25 years. He has always held down a good job and we've never had any serious problems in our marriage. Now I am worried sick about something and I don't know where to turn.

I'm sure my husband is a kleptomaniac. For the last several months I've been finding a strange assortment of useless articles which he has hidden all over the house. I read somewhere that kleptomaniacs steal things they have no use for just for the thrill of getting away with it. This is what makes them different from ordinary thieves.

Darlene Sears GA's Meet

MOREHOUSE -- The Darlene Sears Intermediate G. A.'s of the First Baptist Church met last Tuesday afternoon at the home of their counselor, Mrs. Glenn Bohannon. Vice president Peggy Orr called the meeting to order. The G. A.'s repeated the Allegiance in unison and sang "We've A Story To Tell To The Nation". Debby Payne read the Prayer Calendar and Donna Bohannon led in prayer for missionaries. Mrs. Bohannon gave the Devotional, ending with the closing prayer.

This morning I found some art supplies, travel clocks, screw drivers and wall thermometers tucked away in an old tackle box.

I am scared to death he will be caught one of these days. The shame of it would kill his parents. Will you please tell me what to do? --H. J.

Dear H. J.: Tell your husband at once that you know what he is doing and insist that he see a doctor. The man is ill. If you can persuade him to return the merchandise it will be a big step in the right direction. The store owners will be cooperative, I promise you.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits--the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex--Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LATEST STYLE
CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Miss Charlotte Clarke, YWCA director, has a new pale blue hat trimmed with forget-me-nots and ribbon — but there its resemblance to ordinary bonnets ends. The hat is a hard helmet such as workers wear on construction jobs. It was presented to her by the architects for the new YWCA building now under construction. They felt the headgear, which carries the YWCA emblem and her name in bold black letters, will come in handy as she visits the building site several times a week.

Miss Evalyn Kay Green Pledges Nuptial Vows With Howard Eugene Harper

The Reverend Kenneth Eudy officiated at the double ring wedding ceremony of Miss Evalyn Kay Green and Howard Eugene Harper on July seven-teenth at six o'clock in the evening.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Green of Sikeston and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Harper, also of Sikeston.

Bement Baptist Church was decorated with an arched garland with greenery and interspersed with white gladioli and tied with white bows. The family pews were marked with pink satin bows.

Miss Loretta James accompanied Robert Ray as he sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of peau de sole. The dress was topped with a lace jacket styled with long tapered sleeves that came to points over the wrists. Pearl buttons closed the sleeves.

A waist-length veil of silk illusion secured with a crown of pearls formed the bride's headpiece. She carried a bouquet of carnations with long white streamers tied in lovers' knots.

Mrs. Gloria Lett, a close friend, served as the matron of honor. She was attired in a two piece white lace dress. She complemented her ensemble with pink accessories and carried a bouquet of pink daisies.

Leonard Lett, a close friend, was best man.

Mrs. Green, mother of the bride, wore a pink cotton dress with white accessories. Mrs. Harper chose a pink cotton dress with pink accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Harper received their guests in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with an off-white cloth. A three tiered cake decorated in pink and white centered the table. A miniature bride and groom was the top decoration of the cake.

Crystal punch bowls graced each end of the table. Mints and nuts were served from crystal and silver dishes.

The gift table was covered in white and surrounded with wedding bells. Pink and white flowers centered the table.

Miss Susie Morse and Miss Janet Harper assisted in serving at the reception. Miss Mary Lou Grimes was in charge of the guest register.

The couple left after the reception for a wedding trip to St. Louis and Meramec Caverns. For traveling, the new Mrs. Harper changed to a two piece blue suit of dacron. The neckline and sleeves were accented with white ruffles. She completed her attire with silver accessories.

They are now at home at 500 Matthews Avenue in Sikeston. The new bride will be a junior at Sikeston Senior High School this fall. Mr. Harper is employed by Barkett's Supermarket.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I just came from my mother's funeral. She was almost 80 years old and a truly fine person.

Mother enjoyed good health up until about three years ago. When her health began to fail, her friends began to fail her, too. The amazing thing about mother's funeral was that dozens of nieces, nephews, neighbors, cousins -- people I hadn't seen in years -- all showed up. I was sorely tempted to ask them why they didn't come to see her when she would have enjoyed the visit -- instead of waiting until now. For weeks mother sat by the window watching the people pass. She was lonely so much of the time it was heartbreaking.

I know a lot of folks read your column. Perhaps some of your readers will recognize themselves in this letter. If you don't bother to go see someone when they are alive I think it is hypocritical to go see them when they are dead. It means only that you don't really care to see them -- just that you want to be SEEN at the funeral.

--DAUGHTER

Dear Daughter: Thank you for a provocative letter. I couldn't agree more.

Dear Ann Landers: Ever since I married this conceited jackass it's been the same old story. Whenever we go where there is dance music he's the first one on the floor. He does a few turns with me and then he looks for someone he'd rather dance with. The minute he spots a good-looking girl he grabs her. Her partner, of course, must dance with me.

I've tried to explain to my husband that the woman may prefer to dance with the man she has. But, oh no, he doesn't see that at all. He thinks he's the first choice of every woman in the world.

Some of those men who have had beautiful young things snatched out of their arms and got me instead have not been very pleased about it and I don't blame them. Any suggestions? --NO TROPHY WINNER

Dear No Winner: Tell the egomaniac the next time he pulls that stunt you will walk off the dance floor and leave him to fight it out with the man whose partner he is trying to grab. Then do it.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married to a nice man for 25 years. He has always held down a good job and we've never had any serious problems in our marriage. Now I am worried sick about something and I don't know where to turn.

I'm sure my husband is a kleptomaniac. For the last several months I've been finding a strange assortment of useless articles which he has hidden all over the house. I read somewhere that kleptomaniacs steal things they have no use for just for the thrill of getting away with it. This is what makes them different from ordinary thieves.

MOREHOUSE -- The Darlene Sears Intermediate G. A.'s of the First Baptist Church met last Tuesday afternoon at the home of their counselor, Mrs. Glenn Bohannon. Vice president Peggy Orr called the meeting to order. The G. A.'s repeated the Allegiance in unison and sang "We've A Story To Tell To The Nation". Debby Payne read the Prayer Calendar and Donna Bohannon led in prayer for missionaries. Mrs. Bohannon gave the devotional, ending with the closing prayer.

This morning I found some art supplies, travel clocks, screw drivers and wall thermometers tucked away in an old tackle box.

I am scared to death he will be caught one of these days. The shame of it would kill his parents. Will you please tell me what to do? --H. J.

Dear H. J.: Tell your husband at once that you know what he is doing and insist that he see a doctor. The man is ill. If you can persuade him to return the merchandise it will be a big step in the right direction. The store owners will be cooperative, I promise you. What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits--the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-age Sex--Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Head mentor, Coach Bill Sapp, beginning his 14th season as head of the Bulldogs, explained to the boys out for football exactly what he expects from each player in a short chalk-talk before the actual two-hour morning workout. In the talk, Coach Sapp said that checking through past year's records, that this year's squad is equal in ability to last year's grid. He said that this squad is above average in intelligence, and if this is accurate, he believes that this should be the solution to most of the problems of the new squad. He also added that the "Big Red" is not any slower nor smaller than previous years. He reminded everyone as an individual what he should know. He went on by telling the boys that their opponents are, this year, just as rough and tough as last year's.

Head Coach Sapp told the boys that they should know their job and that they must be willing and able to perform it in tough competition. Every boy, in order to improve, should study films of the Dogs in action over the previous years. In doing this, each position could be closely watched, and therefore, better team. In watching the e films, better faking, better blocking, better tackling and pursuit can be improved.

He ended his chalk talk by showing the boys several new plays that will be added to the roster this year.

After Coach Sapp's talk, the boys, warmed up with calisthenics and a few laps around the field. After that they were divided into three groups; backs, linemen, and quarterbacks and centers. Open Annual Tourney With Tripleheader

Sikeston's Annual Little League Tournament hosted its first night of baseball action last night at Farris Field with a tripleheader. Richland and Morley battled it out in the first of the three games with Morley taking an easy victory over Richland, 21-10. Game two saw Ilmo-Scott City take a 17-13 defeat from a strong Chaffee nine, and in game three Bloomfield ran over Morehouse 13-3 in four innings.

In the first Richland-Morley bout, Richland pounded the ball twice to gain four runs, but allowed Morley to score just as many. The second frame of action saw Morley trounce eight runs across the plate and hold Richland to four more bringing the score to 12-8. Richland added two in the next to total their score as Morley crossed the plate two times in the third and fourth and five times in the fifth to ice the victory.

Abernathy hurled Morley to their victory allowing only three batters to connect with hits—three from Williamson. The defeat went to Richland's reliever, Clark. He and Conner allowed eight hits to the victors.

Matthews Hammers In Six Runs; Braves Boost Cards

Eddie Matthews was soaking his left hand in some ice after the game and observed: "Don't wake me up let me keep dreaming." Matthews had just driven in six runs for the Milwaukee Braves to keep them breathing hot on the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers. His six RBIs boosted Milwaukee to a 10-8 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Those runs batted in gave him 20 RBIs in nine days. Over that period, he has been hitting .545 with 18 hits for 33 times at bat.

He picked up his first RBI Monday night with a fielders choice in the first. Matthews slammed a two-run homer in the third, his 27th of the season. He singled in the sixth to break the 4-4 tie. And in the ninth he hit one off the handle for a single to centerfield to drive in two runs and nullify a grand-slam home run by the Redbirds Tim McCarver which had tied it 8-8 in the eighth.

"The ball jammed me on that ninth inning single," Matthews said. It bruised my left thumb, I don't think its hurt much though."

Brave Manager Bobby Bragan said he would have to wait until today to see if this third baseman could play in the second game of the current series with the Cardinals tonight.

Rightthander Tracy Stallard 8-5 will be pitching for St. Louis. Denny Lemaster 5-9 will be on the mound for the Braves.

Kansas City was idle Monday but they swing back into action tonight against the Indians at Cleveland.

Lew Krausse 0-0 will start for the Athletics against the Indians' Jack Kralick 4-9 or Sonny Siebert 13-6.

Open Annual Tourney With Tripleheader

Sikeston's Annual Little League Tournament hosted it's first night of baseball action last night at Farris Field with a tripleheader. Richland and Morley battled it out in the first of the three games with Morley taking an easy victory over Richland, 21-10. Game two saw Ilmo-Scott City take a 17-13 defeat from a strong Chaffee nine, and in game three Bloomfield ran over Morehouse 13-3 in four innings.

In the first Richland-Morley bout, Richland pounded the ball twice to gain four runs, but allowed Morley to score just as many. The second frame of action saw Morley trounce eight runs across the plate and hold Richland to four more bringing the score to 12-8. Richland added two in the next to total their score as Morley crossed the plate two times in the third and fourth and five times in the fifth to ice the victory.

Abernathy hurled Morley to their victory allowing only three batters to connect with hits--three from Williamson. The defeat went to Richland's reliever, Clark. He and Conner allowed eight hits to the victors.

New Madrid to Big Oak State Park Route Okayed

NEW MADRID -- The Missouri State Highway Commission has given tentative approval to plans for a new route to be known as state supplementary route WW extending between Big Oak State Park in Mississippi county and New Madrid in New Madrid county.

The Commission in announcing its decision to provide a connection from the New Madrid area to Big Oak State Park emphasized that no dates are fixed at this time for the actual construction of the improvement. The Commission has approved the location so that the necessary preliminary engineering work can go forward towards the eventual development of Route WW.

The approved line begins in New Madrid county at the junction of Route U in the northeastern part of the City of New Madrid. It extends south for a short distance on to the top of the Farrenburg levee which it follows north-easterly to a point where the Corps of Engineers' set-back levee joins. Department engineers recommend widening the Farrenburg levee by 10 feet on the river side to provide a 34-foot roadway.

At a point about four miles east of New Madrid the new route would cross East Bayou and for this crossing a new 250-foot bridge is proposed. It continues on in a north-easterly direction generally parallel with the levee and joins Route 102 at the east park entrance in Big Oak State Park.

The total length of the proposed improvement is 15.8 miles.

Money Supply Dries up

EDITOR'S NOTE -- A hubbub is developing over the international money supply. Is this a problem involving only monetary eggheads? In the following, first in a series of five articles on the world's money supply, Sam Dawson, AP Business News Analyst, gives an ABC of terms you'll be seeing more often.

BY SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK -- Some people see a drought ahead for the international money supply. And they say this could end up being about as bad for you as the drying up of water reservoirs. Others see the world's complicated monetary system more in danger of being flooded — and with new inflationary devices that could swell your already high cost of living and perhaps scuttle your family budget.

At stake is not only how much money and credit the world needs but how it should be divided between the haves and the have-nots. Who supplies the funds and who gets them can affect U.S. prosperity and the purchasing power of your take-home pay.

Here is the meaning of the terms being bandied about by international bankers and national treasurers:

Q. Just what is "international liquidity," that could be the chief bone of contention at next month's gathering in Washington of the world's top financial experts?

A. It is the sum of all funds and credits on which central banks and governments can rely their hands to meet their balance of payments deficits.

Q. And what is a balance of payments deficit — or surplus?

A. Any nation's balance of payments is the difference between: 1. The amount of its money that is paid to foreigners for imports, military expenses abroad, tourist travel, government loans and grants, private investment or loans in other lands; and 2. The amount of money that comes back in payment for a nation's exports, profits on overseas investments, tourist travel from abroad, interest on its government and private loans. When more money goes out than returns there's a deficit. When more comes back than is sent abroad there's a surplus.

Q. When this country runs a deficit — as it has in every year since 1949 except 1957 — how does it settle up?

A. It can dip into its official reserves, borrow from standby funds or induce foreigners to hold onto their surplus of dollars as being good as gold.

Q. What are official reserves?

A. Gold and foreign currencies held by central banks or governments. Since World War II the U.S. dollar has been the most prized and widely held currency. The British pound sterling is next, especially among the Commonwealth nations. But any country's currency may be held, and often is, for settlement of payments in the normal patterns of trade.

Q. What are standby funds?

A. Since World War II the major source has been the International credit funds that central banks can use. A recent one is the "Club of 10" — pooling of financial resources of the 10 leading monetary countries to aid any member that gets into deep water as Britain has of late. All such borrowing must be repaid in time, hopefully when surpluses replace deficits.

Q. How big are these reserves and standby funds?

A. Members of the IMF have a total of about $65 billion of official reserves and their credit sources total around $23 billion.

Q. Do U. S. official gold and currency reserves and standby funds finance its international trade?

A. No. Private corporations, importers and exporters, commercial banks and other lenders do that. If the outflow of dollars were in balance with the return flow, America's international trade and foreign investments could rise to any level without affecting its reserves of gold and foreign currencies.

Q. How are day-to-day deficits or surpluses settled?

A. Normally by private corporations and banks out of their own holdings of foreign currencies and credits. It's only when a deficit is persistent and huge as in the United States until lately and as in Britain today that the central monetary authorities must sell foreign exchange or gold or seek credits.

Q. How does the balance of trade differ from the balance of payments?

A. The balance of trade is the relation of exports to imports. The United States sells more abroad than it buys and has a balance of trade surplus. It's all the other forms of payments outlined above that have turned the favorable U.S. balance of trade into a deficit in the balance of payments.

NEXT: Why is the international money supply a problem now?

INGRID FINGER, 19 the former Miss Germany, turns on a smile as she steps from a line of lovely ladies to claim the title of Miss International Beauty. The contest took place in Long Beach, Calif.

New Madrid to Big Oak State Park Route Okayed

NEW MADRID -- The Missouri State Highway Commission has given tentative approval to plans for a new route to be known as state supplementary route WW extending between Big Oak State Park in Mississippi county and New Madrid in New Madrid county.

The Commission in announcing its decision to provide a connection from the New Madrid area to Big Oak State Park emphasized that no dates are fixed at this time for the actual construction of the improvement. The Commission has approved the location so that the necessary preliminary engineering work can go forward towards the eventual development of Route WW.

The approved line begins in New Madrid county at the junction of Route U in the northeastern part of the City of New Madrid. It extends south for a short distance on to the top of the Farrenburg levee which it follows north-easterly to a point where the Corps of Engineers' set-back levee joins. Department engineers recommend widening the Farrenburg levee by 10 feet on the river side to provide a 34-foot roadway.

At a point about four miles east of New Madrid the new route would cross East Bayou and for this crossing a new 250-foot bridge is proposed. It continues on in a north-easterly direction generally parallel with the levee and joins Route 102 at the east park entrance in Big Oak State Park.

The total length of the proposed improvement is 15.8 miles.

The bids must be received by the city clerk no later than 2 p.m. Tuesday. After all the bids are received they will be opened in the special meeting of the city council.

Money Supply Dries up

EDITOR'S NOTE -- A hubbub is developing over the international money supply. Is this a problem involving only monetary eggheads? In the following, first in a series of five articles on the world's money supply, Sam Dawson, AP Business News Analyst, gives an ABC of terms you'll be seeing more often.

BY SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst NEW YORK -- Some people see a drought ahead for the international money supply. And they say this could end up being about as bad for you as the drying up of water reservoirs. Others see the world's complicated monetary system more in danger of being flooded -- and with new inflationary devices that could swell your already high cost of living and perhaps scuttle your family budget.

At stake is not only how much money and credit the world needs but how it should be divided between the haves and the have-nots. Who supplies the funds and who gets them can affect U.S. prosperity and the purchasing power of your take-home pay.

Here is the meaning of the terms being bandied about by international bankers and national treasurers: Q. Just what is "international liquidity" that could be the chief bone of contention at next month's gathering in Washington of the world's top financial experts?

A. It is the sum of all funds and credits on which central banks and governments can lay their hands to meet their balance of payments deficits.

Q. And what is a balance of payments deficit -- or surplus?

A. Any nation's balance of payments is the difference between: 1. The amount of its money that is paid to foreigners for imports, tourist travel, government loans and grants, private investment or loans in other lands; and 2. The amount of money that comes back in payment for a nation's exports, profits on overseas investments, tourist travel from abroad, interest on its government and private loans. When more money goes out than returns there's a deficit. When more comes back than is sent abroad there's a surplus.

Q. When this country runs a deficit -- as it has in every year since 1949 except 1957 -- how does it settle up?

A. It can dip into its official reserves, borrow from standby funds or induce foreigners to hold onto their surplus of dollars as being good as gold.

Q. What are official reserves?

A. Gold and foreign currencies held by central banks or governments. Since World War II the U.S. dollar has been the most prized and widely held currency. The British pound sterling is next, especially among the Commonwealth nations. But any country's currency may be held, and often is, for settlement of payments in the normal patterns of trade.

Q. What are standby funds?

A. Since World War II the major source has been the international credit funds that central banks can use. A recent one is the "Club of 10" -- pooling of financial resources of the 10 leading monetary countries to add any member that gets into deep water as Britain has of late. All such borrowing must be repaid in time, hopefully when surpluses replace deficits. Q. How big are these reserves and standby funds?

A. Members of the IMF have a total of about $65 billion of official reserves and their credit sources total around $23 billion. Q. Do U. S. official gold and currency reserves and standby funds finance its international trade?

A. No. Private corporations, importers and exporters, commercial banks and other lenders do that. If the outflow of dollars were in balance with the return flow, America's international trade and foreign investments could rise to any level without affecting its reserves of gold and foreign currencies.

Q. How are day-to-day deficits or surpluses settled. A. Normally by private corporations and banks out of their own holdings of foreign currencies and credits. It's only when a deficit is persistent and huge as in the United States until lately and as in Britain today that the central monetary authorities must sell foreign exchange or gold or seek credits.

Q. How does the balance of trade differ from the balance of payments? A. The balance of trade is the relation of exports to imports. The United States sells more abroad than it buys and has a balance of trade surplus. It's all the other forms of payments outlined above that have turned the favorable U.S. balance of trade into a deficit in the balance of payments.

NEXT: Why is the international money supply a problem now? Asa Gray's "Manual of Botany," which appeared in 1848, serves as a handbook of American botanists.

year was in October of 1964 when the amount paid totaled $1,904,727.

The office-by-office tabulation of unemployment insurance benefit payments during July of 1965 at the five Southeast Missouri offices, along with the June of 1965 and July of 1964 payments, are shown in the following account:

Caruthersville -- July of 1965, $9,619.56; June of 1965, $12,190.88; and July of 1964, $10,350.56.

Cotton Nears Harvest Stage

MEMPHIS -- Harvest of cotton gained momentum in many early sections. More than 1,000 samples were submitted for classification this week in South Louisiana, according to the consumer and marketing service, United States Department of Agriculture. Grades strict middling and middling with staples 1-1/16 and 1-3/32 inches predominated in early ginning. Micronaire was mostly 5.0 and above. Prices received by farmers were about 25 points above loan rates. In other sections of the south central Area, many fields reached the last stages of maturity, and ginning should get underway in about two weeks. Insect poisoning programs were stepped up following rains.

Trading in cotton increased. Reported purchases from the four central markets in the South Central Area totaled 78,311 bales for the week ended August 12, 1965.

A bountiful cotton crop in the Memphis territory is in prospect as a result of recent rains. Insect infestations showed a slight increase from a week earlier, but no serious damage is reported. Ginner and farmers are busy getting ready to handle the new crop.

Spot cotton trading on the Memphis market increased from a week earlier. New-crop cotton from earlier areas figured in to a great extent. Domestic mill buying for September through December delivery increased from a week earlier. Demand covered a wide range of qualities and prices were steady. Foreign mill inquiries remained light and interest mostly in middling and higher white grades. Cotton continued to make good progress despite dry conditions in Southeast Missouri. Mites are still a problem in local communities.

Some open bolls have been seen, indicating an early harvest. Contracting of the coming crop continues.

FHA Offers Housing Loans

The senior citizen rural housing loan program can help residents in Scott and Mississippi counties, according to Harry S. Littleton, county supervisor for the Farmers Home Administration.

Loans are made to build modest new homes, repair old houses, or to purchase an old house. The interest rate on senior citizen loans is four per cent and the repayment period can be extended up to 33 years. This interest rate and repayment period allow older people to build or purchase a home and repay it with small monthly payments that fit their budget.

In order to qualify for one of these housing loans, a person must be at least 62 years old and live in a rural community. A rural community is any town of less than 2,500 population or open country. They must also be unable to obtain suitable financing from other sources.

FHA also administers senior citizen rental housing loans. Where there is a need, such a loan can be made to an individual or a private nonprofit corporation to build housing and related facilities in a rural area. These living units may then be rented to senior citizens.

Anyone interested in a loan may contact the office of Farmers Home Administration in rooms 204 and 205 of the old Post Office. The telephone number is GRanite 1-1014.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 17th, the 229th day of 1965. There are 136 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1807, Robert Fulton's paddle-wheel steamer, the "Clermont," puffed out of New York on a voyage to Albany and return. Ridiculed as "Fulton's Folly," it was the first practical steamboat built in America, although other models had been tried out earlier.

On this date In 1786, Davey Crockett, the hero of the Alamo, was born.

In 1940, Germany declared a total blockade of Britain.

Also in 1940, Wendell Willkie accepted the Republican presidential nomination in a speech at Elwood, Ind.

In 1943, Allied forces completed their conquest of Sicily.

Ten years ago--The Defense Department issued a report showing that 7,190 men had become prisoners in the Korean War and 2,730 died in enemy hands--on death marches and because of ill treatment.

Five years ago -- Air Force Capt. Joseph Kittinger set four records when he ascended in an open-gondola balloon to a height of about 103,000 feet over Alamogordo, N. M., and plunged 17 miles in a free fall before parachuting the remaining 2 1/2 miles to earth.

One year ago--South Vietnamese government forces were engaged in a battle with Communist guerrillas in the Mekong River delta.

Hearnes Vetoes One Bill

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes vetoed one bill Friday and signed another into law.

He rejected a bill that would have required the state purchasing agent to throw out any bids that showed evidence of erasure or a change in bid price. It was his fifth veto.

Hearnes said that requirement was a good one but he vetoed the bill because of an amendment it picked up in its course through the legislature. The amendment would have abolished the requirement that the purchasing agent advertise for bids in at least two daily newspapers.

"In my opinion," Hearnes said in his veto message, "the removal of this requirement would not be in the best interests of sound purchasing practices by this state, because advertising in the manner prescribed by present law provides for greater dissemination of notice to bidders and encourage more persons and companies to bid."

He signed a bill to regulate contracts or plans for funeral arrangements and services. It was designed to protect purchasers of pre-paid funeral plans from being defrauded.

GOP Running Out of Time On Suburban Battlefields

BY BRUCE BISSAT
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON—NEA

Republican party spokesmen say often that the nation's burgeoning suburbs represent their greatest battlefield for 1966-68 comeback efforts. So far, however, the signs of progress are slim.

A sharp-minded young conservative professional declares: "When we Republicans discuss the problems of the suburbs, we find some leaders who just don't like what's happening."

"They don't like the people (various minorities) who are moving in. In politics, you're in trouble if you don't like people."

The same point was made recently by Prof. Milton Rakove of Chicago's Loyola University, in study findings reported by the Chicago Daily News.

Commenting on the emigration of Italians, Poles, Bohemians, Jews and others from Chicago to surrounding suburbs, Rakove asserts:

"Rebuffed in their new communities, ignored by the Republican party and its affiliates, they are still attached to their traditional Democratic faith."

"The truth of the matter, which has been borne in upon them, is that the Republican party, its affiliates, and many of its supporters either do not want them or are unable or unwilling to make the necessary efforts to get them."

THE MAGNITUDE of the undertaking required of the Republicans is emphasized by newly compiled figures which show how poorly the GOP did in most suburbs in the 1964 presidential vote.

The Goldwater-Miller ticket had a deficit of 2,680,105 votes last year in major suburban areas of the 50 states. The GOP share of the two-party vote was a shade less than 41 per cent.

By contrast, the Nixon-Lodge ticket in 1960 edged Kennedy-Johnson in U. S. suburban sectors by 757,550 votes. The Republican percentage of the two-party total then was 52.7.

Republicans also have been losing congressmen in the suburbs. Precise breakdowns between city and suburb are frequently impossible because of districts which overlap. But, of the 104 representatives sent to Congress by the 12 largest U. S. cities and their suburbs, the GOP share has dropped to 30 per cent as compared with 52 per cent as recently as 1952. Many losses are clearly suburban.

ANOTHER GOLDWATER stronghold, the San Diego suburbs, gave Barry 52.1 per cent but Nixon 58.9 per cent.

The Republican ticket barely passed 40 per cent in the Denver suburbs, was good for 37.4 per cent in the Miami suburbs, 35.7 per cent in the Des Moines suburbs, an amazingly low 33.8 per cent in Maryland's Montgomery County (a Washington suburb thought to be heavily tinged with conservatism), 32 per cent in Detroit's suburbs. GOP suburban percentages in Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse in "conservative" upstate New York ran from 33.8 to 37.5.

If the suburbs are their battleground, Republicans plainly have already lost many important engagements. They do not have much time to regroup for the next encounter in 1966.

Warren Osborne Barber Put On FBI's List of 10

WASHINGTON - Warren Cleveland Osborne, a Nashville barber who has a long criminal record and is now charged with a beauty parlor slaying, has been added to the FBI's list of 10 Most Wanted Fugitives.

On July 29, 1964, Osborne reportedly pursued his estranged wife into a Nashville beauty parlor, excitedly brandishing a .38 caliber pistol. When confronted by the proprietor, who was his former landlady, Osborne allegedly shot and killed her, threatened to kill his wife and then chased a taxi driver across the street into a drive-in market where he shot him in the leg. The cab driver had been hired to transport Osborne's estranged wife to work. Osborne then allegedly fled in his late-model car which was subsequently recovered in White Plains, N.Y., on Christmas Eve, 1964.

A federal warrant, charging Osborne with unlawful interstate flight to avoid prosecution for murder, was issued at Nashville, March 11.

Osborne, who reportedly may have suicidal tendencies, has a lengthy criminal record which began in Nashville in 1936 on an auto theft charge. He served a brief sentence in various Tennessee penal institutions. In April, 1939, upon conviction in Kentucky for grand larceny, he was given a two-year prison sentence and confined to the

THE Outlook for Business

for the last six months of 1965

RETAIL FOOD DISTRIBUTION
The current business expansion has now broken all previous records, dating back as it does 54 months to February, 1961. Well through the current year and into 1966, though we cannot see very far into the new year beginning six months from now. A $660 billion gross national product in 1965 now looks fairly secure.

In retrospect, the cut in federal income taxes 15 months ago has continued its buoyant influence in over-all economic activity in the first half of 1965. Consumer income, measured by disposable personal income, increased 7.3 per cent in 1964, a rate of gain nearly matched by the 7 per cent rise in the first quarter of 1965. The promise of excise tax cuts to be effective July 1 and stepped-up social security benefits in the second half of the year are supplements to the powerful stimulus applied to the consumer sector of the economy in the last year.

Gains in disposable personal income reported over the last four quarters have been more than fully reflected in consumer spending, as measured by consumption expenditure totals, and in retail sales. In fact, personal saving, that is, income not spent on goods and services, amounted to 6.7 per cent of disposable income in the first quarter of 1965, a somewhat smaller proportion than a year earlier and well below the post-war average. All major categories of retailing have shared in the increase in consumer spending, although not proportionately.

During the January-April period total retail sales reached an annual rate of $276 billion, 8 per cent above the comparable period of 1964. The largest share of this gain was in consumer durables areas, notably automobiles, reflecting the spill-over of sales from the fourth quarter of last year when strikes greatly reduced the output of major producers. In contrast, grocery store sales in the first five months of this year have increased 5.7 per cent. Sales were up 4 per cent in a year ago in the first quarter, but the rate of gain has been in excess of 8 per cent in April and May based on weekly preliminary data.

In part, the relative increase in food store sales reflects higher food prices, principally fresh meats and fruits and vegetables. At this point it might well be appropriate to comment on the subject of food prices, particularly in light of the continuing hearings before the National Food Marketing Commission and the publicity given to this subject in the press. Beef and pork prices have risen rather dramatically in recent weeks from the 7-year low experienced in 1964. Prices last year were disastrous for cattle feeders and hog raisers. The inevitable market forces of supply and demand were at work then as now. Thus we have seen a sharp reduction in the pig crop available for marketing this spring and a decline in beef slaughter and in the number of cattle and calves shipped into north central areas for finishing. With respect to beef, it is important to note that the basic demand is for fed cattle and not crows and calves from the range country. In our view it appears that beef and pork prices have reached the point at which greater supplies will be forthcoming. The prospect of slightly lower prices for beef, particularly through the summer and early fall, now seems reasonable. Pork prices will almost certainly decline as the year progresses.

Thirty-nine cent lettuce has been the subject of much discussion in households around the country recently. The case of lettuce is symptomatic of a rather dull outlook for fresh fruits and vegetables and prices now prevailing in food stores generally. Very bad weather in the northwest and severe labor shortages in the growing areas are largely responsible for this situation. The supplies of fresh vegetables and fruits have been limited by the unavailability of labor to plant, cultivate, and pick these crops. Supplies are down along with quality.

In past years migrant farm workers have moved from one crop area to another, working their way northward as the season progressed. With sharply reduced numbers of workers now in the South and West, it is likely that the north central states will feel the full effects of the labor shortage in the months to come. For this reason we expect a continuation of relatively high prices for fresh produce items. Once again, we have a prime example of the market place in action, in this case with immediately measured consequences for consumers.

It is difficult to translate these market conditions into firm numbers for grocery store sales in the last half of the year. However, we can safely anticipate a year-to-year gain of 5 to 6 per cent in disposable income.

Consumer confidence remains strong by all measures and hence retail sales will likely move along in step. I would expect, therefore, that food sales would match the rise in disposable income. For the year as a whole, grocery store sales should reach $66 billion with the food chains accounting for roughly $26 billion of that total. These figures compare with $62.2 billion and $25 billion, respectively, for 1964.

The earnings performance of the industry thus far in 1965 has been favorable with a very few noticeable exceptions. A small sample of food chain reports for the first quarter indicates that earnings are up about 8 per cent from the prior year, following a greater increase last year. The improved earnings performance for the industry probably accounts for the step-up in new store construction activity anticipated for the year.

While perishables' prices and supplies have disrupted the industry's "natural" merchandising patterns to some extent, we feel that prospects of retail food distributors for the next six months are good. The food distribution industry will continue to be responsive to the needs of consumers and producers of food products to the benefit of all.
